

Prince Harry and Florence Brudenell-Bruce get backstage passes to Killers gig

Written by Lara Deauville

PRINCE Harry's first proper date with new lingerie model girlfriend Florence Brudenell-Bruce was a Killer's gig in London.

And Prince Harry was lucky enough to be able to impress his new love with a pair of backstage passes for the Hard Rock Calling festival in Hyde Park.

The pair watched Manchester indie band James, Leeds bloke-rock kings The Kaiser Chiefs and headliners The Killers before relaxing backstage with beers and friends.

An eye witness who was also backstage said at on point Prince and a giggly Ms Brudenell-Bruce were told off by security guards as they were supposed to be backstage rather than mingling with crowds.

She added: "They were trying to play down the relationship but it was pretty obvious they were together.

"We all hope it works out for them!"

According to The Sun newspaper 25-year-old Florence Brudenell-Bruce, nicknamed Flee, has said: "I think I'm in love."

The underwear model, who is Harry's eighth cousin, has modelled for Adidas, Knickerbox and Paddy Power.

British bookies now make Prince Harry and Florence 8/11 to marry and 2/1 they tie the knot next year.
